

RISK DISCLOSURE AND WARNING NOTICE

DOMINION MARKETS

1. IMPORTANT NOTICE

This Risk Disclosure and Warning Notice ("Risk Disclosure") is issued by Dominion Markets Ltd. ("Dominion Markets", "Company", "we", "our", or "us") and forms an integral part of the Client Agreement, Terms and Conditions, and any policies, disclosures, risk warnings, or documents incorporated by reference.

The purpose of this Risk Disclosure is to provide prospective and existing clients with information regarding the significant risks associated with trading financial instruments offered by the Company, including but not limited to Contracts for Difference (CFDs), Foreign Exchange (Forex), Precious Metals, Commodities, Indices, share CFDs, futures CFDs, and other CFD or leveraged instruments made available by the Company.

This Risk Disclosure does not disclose or explain all risks associated with trading financial instruments. Clients should ensure that they fully understand the nature of the products offered and the extent of their exposure to risk before engaging in any trading activity.

Trading leveraged financial instruments involves a high degree of risk and may not be suitable for all investors. You may lose all or substantially all of your invested capital within a short period of time.

You should only trade with funds that you can afford to lose and should carefully consider your financial circumstances, investment objectives, level of experience, and risk tolerance before opening an account or placing any trades.

a) High-Risk Investment Warning

CFDs and leveraged financial instruments are speculative products and involve a high degree of risk. A large percentage of retail clients may lose money when trading leveraged products. Clients should carefully assess whether they understand how these products work and whether they can afford to take the high risk of losing their money.

2. NO INVESTMENT ADVICE

Dominion Markets does not provide investment advice, portfolio management services, wealth management services, legal advice, tax advice, accounting advice, or financial planning services.

The Company does not act as a fiduciary, financial adviser, investment adviser, asset manager, or portfolio manager.

Any information provided through market commentary, economic calendars, research reports, educational materials, trading signals, webinars, news updates, technical analysis, fundamental analysis, social media content, or communications from the Company's representatives is provided solely for general informational and educational purposes. Such information does not constitute investment advice, financial advice, personalized recommendations, trading recommendations, or a solicitation, offer, or inducement to enter into any transaction or engage in any investment activity. Clients should make their own independent decisions and seek independent professional advice where necessary.

The Client remains solely responsible for all trading and investment decisions.

3. NO GUARANTEE OF PROFITS

The Company does not guarantee any profit, return, performance, success rate, recovery of losses, or achievement of any investment objective.

Any examples, illustrations, historical performance information, research reports, educational materials, market commentary, trading signals, webinars, promotional materials, or other information provided by the Company are for informational purposes only and should not be interpreted as a guarantee or prediction of future performance.

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results. The value of financial instruments may rise or fall, and clients may lose all or substantially all of their invested capital.

4. CLIENT RESPONSIBILITY

The Client acknowledges and agrees that all trading decisions are made independently by the Client. The Client is solely responsible for assessing the risks and merits of any transaction, monitoring positions, account balances, margin levels, and market conditions, and determining whether any product, service, strategy, or transaction is suitable for their circumstances.

The Company does not guarantee the suitability, profitability, or performance of any product, service, strategy, or transaction and shall not be responsible for any losses arising from decisions made by the Client.

The Client should seek independent professional advice before engaging in trading if there is any uncertainty regarding the risks involved.

a) SOCIAL TRADING, COPY TRADING AND SIGNAL SERVICES RISK

Where the Company offers, facilitates, or permits access to copy trading, social trading, strategy providers, signal services, automated trading systems, PAMM, MAM, or similar services, the Client acknowledges that such services involve substantial risk. Historical performance is not a reliable indicator of future results and does not guarantee future profitability. The Client remains solely responsible for evaluating, selecting, monitoring, and discontinuing any copied strategy or signal provider. The Company does not guarantee the accuracy, performance, suitability, or profitability of any strategy, trader, signal provider, or automated trading system.

5. GENERAL MARKET RISK

The value of financial instruments may rise or fall rapidly and unpredictably. Financial markets are influenced by numerous factors, including economic conditions, interest rate changes, inflation, political developments, government actions, central bank decisions, corporate announcements, geopolitical events, military conflicts, natural disasters, and market sentiment.

As a result, market prices may fluctuate significantly and unexpectedly. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance, and no representation or guarantee is made that any investment strategy will achieve profits or avoid losses.

6. LEVERAGE RISK

Most financial instruments offered by the Company are leveraged products.

Leverage allows a Client to obtain increased market exposure with a comparatively small deposit.

While leverage may magnify profits, it also magnifies losses.

Even a small market movement may result in significant losses, rapid depletion of account equity, margin calls, forced liquidation of positions, or loss of the entire account balance. The use of leverage significantly increases financial risk, and the Client should fully understand the risks of leveraged trading before entering into any transaction.

The Client should not assume that losses are limited to any specific amount unless expressly stated in the Client Agreement or required under applicable law. The Client remains responsible for understanding the margin, leverage, liquidation, and risk management terms applicable to the trading account.

7. MARGIN RISK AND AUTOMATIC LIQUIDATION

Trading on margin requires the maintenance of sufficient funds in the trading account.

If the Client's account equity falls below the required margin levels, the Company may, without prior notice and subject to the Client Agreement, reject orders, restrict trading activity, close open positions, cancel pending orders, reduce leverage, suspend account functionality, or take any other action permitted under the Client Agreement and applicable laws.

The Client remains fully responsible for monitoring account balances and margin requirements.

The Company is not obligated to issue margin calls or provide advance warning before liquidating positions.

8. VOLATILITY RISK

Financial markets may experience periods of extreme volatility.

During volatile market conditions, prices may change rapidly, spreads may widen significantly, liquidity may decrease, execution delays may occur, slippage may increase, and orders may be executed at prices different from those requested. Extreme volatility may result in substantial losses within a very short period, including within seconds.

9. GAP RISK AND WEEKEND RISK

Market prices may move significantly between trading sessions, and price gaps may occur due to economic announcements, elections, geopolitical events, armed conflicts, natural disasters, regulatory actions, corporate announcements, or other significant market events. Where price gaps occur, orders, including Stop Loss Orders, Take Profit Orders, and Pending Orders, may not be executed at the requested price and may instead be executed at the next available market price. This may result in slippage, increased losses, or losses that are substantially greater than the Client anticipated.

10. STOP LOSS AND RISK MANAGEMENT LIMITATIONS

Stop Loss Orders, Take Profit Orders, Trailing Stops, and similar risk management tools are designed to assist in managing risk but cannot guarantee protection against losses.

Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders at the requested price.

Accordingly, losses may exceed the level intended by the Client.

11. LIQUIDITY RISK

Certain financial instruments may experience reduced liquidity or become temporarily illiquid.

Reduced liquidity may result in delayed execution, partial execution, rejected orders, wider spreads, and difficulty opening or closing positions. The Company cannot guarantee the availability of liquidity at all times, and the Client may be unable to execute transactions at the requested price or at all.

12. TECHNOLOGY AND ELECTRONIC TRADING RISKS

Trading activities rely on technology, software, communication networks, and third-party systems.

The Client accepts all risks arising from technology, communication, and system-related issues, including internet outages, network failures, power interruptions, hardware malfunctions, software defects, cybersecurity incidents, system overloads, data transmission errors, unauthorised access, distributed denial-of-service attacks (DDoS), platform interruptions, and failures by third-party service providers. The Company shall not be liable for any loss, delay, interruption, damage, or inability to access or use any service arising from such events, except where liability cannot be excluded under applicable law.

The Company does not guarantee uninterrupted access to trading systems, websites, client portals, payment systems, account services, or communication channels.

13. RECORDING OF COMMUNICATIONS

The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Company may monitor, record, retain, review, and use telephone conversations, emails, live chats, video calls, electronic communications, platform communications, and other communications between the Client and the Company.

Such recordings and communications may be used for compliance and regulatory purposes, quality assurance and training, fraud prevention and security monitoring, dispute resolution, investigation of complaints, risk management, and evidentiary purposes in any legal, regulatory, or administrative proceedings.

The Client acknowledges that such records may be retained by the Company for the period required under applicable laws, regulations, and internal policies and may be relied upon as evidence in the event of any dispute or investigation.

14. PLATFORM AND ORDER EXECUTION RISKS

The Client acknowledges that prices displayed on the platform may change rapidly, delays may occur between order submission and execution, and orders may be executed at prices different from those displayed at the time of submission. Market conditions may prevent immediate execution, and scheduled or unscheduled platform maintenance may temporarily affect trading functionality.

The Company shall not be liable for losses arising from delays, disruptions, interruptions, or failures affecting trading systems beyond its reasonable control.

15. PRICING ERROR AND MANIFEST ERROR RISK

The Company reserves the right to void, cancel, amend, adjust, reverse, or correct any transaction, position, trade, order, account balance, profit, loss, rebate, commission, or payment resulting from manifest error, obvious pricing errors, incorrect market data, software defects, system malfunctions, technical failures, delayed quotes, human error, or any other pricing anomaly. The Company's determination of a Manifest Error shall be final and binding, provided that the Company acts reasonably and in good faith.

16. LIQUIDITY PROVIDER AND COUNTERPARTY RISK

The Company may obtain pricing, execution services, liquidity, and market access from third-party liquidity providers and counterparties.

Such providers may reject orders, withdraw or reduce liquidity, widen spreads, suspend or delay pricing, or experience financial, technical, operational, or regulatory difficulties. Any such event may affect pricing, execution, account access, or the Client's ability to open, manage, or close positions.

The Company shall not be liable for losses arising from the acts, omissions, insolvency, or failures of third-party counterparties.

17. FOREIGN EXCHANGE RISK

Where transactions involve currencies different from the Client's base currency, exchange rate fluctuations may affect account balances, profits and losses, deposits, withdrawals, and investment returns. Currency movements may materially impact trading results, and the Client accepts all risks arising from foreign exchange fluctuations.

18. CORPORATE ACTION RISK

Corporate actions affecting underlying assets may impact CFD positions and related instruments.

Corporate actions, including dividends, mergers, acquisitions, rights issues, stock splits, reverse stock splits, delistings, corporate restructurings, or similar events, may affect the value, pricing, margin requirements, or treatment of financial instruments. The Company may, where appropriate, make adjustments to positions, pricing, margin requirements, account balances, or other account terms to reflect such corporate actions.

19. REGULATORY, LEGAL, AND SANCTIONS RISKS

Changes in laws, regulations, regulatory requirements, sanctions regimes, taxation, exchange rules, or governmental policies may affect trading activities and account operations.

The Company may refuse, suspend, restrict, close, terminate, or otherwise limit any account, transaction, withdrawal, or service where required by applicable laws, regulatory obligations, court orders, sanctions requirements, anti-money laundering obligations, or the Company's internal risk management procedures.

20. FORCE MAJEURE EVENTS

The Company shall not be liable for any loss, delay, interruption, failure, or damage resulting from events beyond its reasonable control, including natural disasters, earthquakes, floods, fires, pandemics, epidemics, armed conflicts, terrorist acts, civil unrest, government actions, exchange suspensions, communication failures, cybersecurity incidents, extraordinary market conditions, or any other event that prevents or materially affects the Company's ability to perform its obligations.

Such events may affect pricing, execution, withdrawals, platform access, or the availability of services.

21. TAXATION

The Client is solely responsible for determining, reporting, filing, paying, and complying with any taxes, duties, levies, assessments, or other tax obligations applicable to the Client's trading activities, transactions, profits, losses, or account. The Company does not provide tax advice and accepts no responsibility for any tax consequences, liabilities, penalties, or obligations arising from the Client's trading activities or use of the Company's services.

22. CLIENT MONEY, THIRD PARTIES, AND INSOLVENCY RISK

Client funds may be held with banks, payment service providers, financial institutions, custodians, liquidity providers, or other third parties. The Client acknowledges that such arrangements may expose the Client to risks relating to the solvency, operation, or failure of those third parties.

In the event of insolvency, bankruptcy, administration, liquidation, or similar proceedings affecting the Company or any third party holding or processing client funds, the Client may experience delays in fund recovery, restrictions on withdrawals, partial recovery of funds, or loss of funds to the extent permitted by applicable law.

The Company does not guarantee the solvency or performance of any third-party institution.

23. JURISDICTION RISK

Clients are responsible for ensuring that access to and use of the Company's services are lawful in their country of residence, nationality, domicile, or location.

The Company accepts no liability for any breach of local laws by a Client.

24. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

The Company may act as principal or counterparty in transactions and may maintain commercial relationships with liquidity providers, financial institutions, introducing brokers, affiliates, and other market participants.

The Company maintains policies and procedures designed to identify, manage, mitigate, and disclose conflicts of interest where appropriate.
